Since 2014, hundreds of officers and supervisors just like you have experienced this course and learned to respond to critical incidents safely, calmly and methodically. Whether you're a seasoned pro looking to brush up on modern tactics or a new officer or supervisor wanting to learn the core concepts, this course is for you.

Looking for an advantage in the next promotional process? You'll get just that because you'll learn how to lead any incident big or small. We've taken the complex theories of tactical science and made them practical and easy to understand. You'll be able to apply what you learned at your very next shift. Come see why the most common feedback students give is "This course should be mandatory!"

"I was frustrated seeing call after call not handled with the care it needed. I am positive more officers would still be alive right now, including my partner who was killed, had more agencies sent their officers and supervisors to this training."

— Detective Brian Wilson,
Stanislaus County Sheriff's Dept. (CA)

Whether you are an officer or supervisor, the decisions you make when responding to an in-progress incident can have a huge impact on how it ends. This course will show you how to do it right.

We'll show you how to respond to an in-progress incident safely, calmly, and methodically. You'll leave this course with the confidence to easily cut through confusion and uncertainty of a crisis. Spend two days training with us and we'll skyrocket your leadership and decision-making skills.

You will learn not only the industry-standard tactics, but the latest modern concepts to use on fleeing suspects, barricaded suspects, mentally ill persons in crisis, and more.

We use contemporary videos and modern approaches to interactive learning to bolster your decision-making capability whether you're an officer or a supervisor. You will leave the course with the tools to assume a leadership role during "hot calls".
