F. ADDITIONAL COMMENTS

Please provide written comments to further justify training need and to identify the unmet training need.

School threats and active shooter incidents have risen substantially every year resulting in tragic deaths and terrorized communities causing public outcries and demands for greater intervention, especially from law enforcement. For example SB 906 passed in July 2022 mandates school officials report any perceived threats to law enforcement who must immediately conduct an investigation and threat assessment. There are some POST classes on behavioral threat assessment but none of them cover the side of criminal investigation or prosecution. Additionally, threat assessment on its own is inadequate. This was proven with the Georgia student who was assessed but still became an active shooter killing 4 and injuring 8 victims. If proper criminal investigation into the active shooter threat was done this may have been prevented. I'm the subject matter expert for my agency on school and active shooter threat investigations. Working for a prosecuting agency I've personally seen the gaps and deficiencies in these types of investigations. I'm best suited to develop and teach this course which is relevant to local, state and federal law enforcement, Educators, mental health professionals, prosecutors, dispatchers, evidence technicians and other stakeholders. Through this course, I believe students will gain valuable training to help avert targeted mass violence.
